Disability benefits

Disability is something most people don't like to think about. But the chances that you'll become disabled probably are greater than you realize. Studies show that a 20-year-old worker has a 1-in-4 chance of becoming disabled before reaching full retirement age.

This booklet provides basic information on Social Security disability benefits and isn't meant to answer all questions. For specific information about your situation, you should speak with a Social Security representative.

We pay disability benefits through two programs: the Social Security disability insurance (SSDI) program and the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. This booklet is about the Social Security disability program. For information about the SSI disability program for adults, see Supplemental Security Income (SSI) (Publication No. 05-11000). For information about disability programs for children, refer to Benefits For Children With Disabilities (Publication No. 05-10026). Our publications are available online at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Who can get Social Security disability benefits?

Social Security pays benefits to people who can't work because they have a medical condition that's expected to last at least one year or result in death. Federal law requires this very strict definition of disability. While some programs give money to people with partial disability or short-term disability, Social Security does not.

Certain family members of disabled workers can also receive money from Social Security. This is explained on pages 12-13.

How do I meet the earnings requirement for disability benefits?

In general, to get disability benefits, you must meet two different earnings tests:

1. A recent work test, based on your age at the time you became disabled; and
2. A duration of work test to show that you worked long enough under Social Security.

Certain blind workers have to meet only the duration of work test.

The following table shows the rules for how much work you need for the recent work test, based on your age when your disability began. We base the rules in this table on the calendar quarter in which you turned or will turn a certain age.

The calendar quarters are

First Quarter: January 1 through March 31

Second Quarter: April 1 through June 30

Third Quarter: July 1 through September 30

Fourth Quarter: October 1 through December 31

Rules for work needed for the recent work test
If you become disabled...	Then, you generally need:
In or before the quarter you turn age 24	1.5 years of work during the three-year period ending with the quarter your disability began.
In the quarter after you turn age 24 but before the quarter you turn age 31	Work during half the time for the period beginning with the quarter after you turned 21 and ending with the quarter you became disabled. Example: If you become disabled in the quarter you turned age 27, then you would need three years of work out of the six-year period ending with the quarter you became disabled.
In the quarter you turn age 31 or later	Work during five years out of the 10-year period ending with the quarter your disability began.

The following table shows examples of how much work you need to meet the duration of work test if you become disabled at various selected ages. For the duration of work test, your work doesn't have to fall within a certain period of time.

NOTE: This table doesn't cover all situations.

Examples of work needed for the duration of work test
If you become disabled...	Then, you generally need:
Before age 28	1.5 years of work
Age 30	2 years
Age 34	3 years
Age 38	4 years
Age 42	5 years
Age 44	5.5 years
Age 46	6 years
Age 48	6.5 years
Age 50	7 years
Age 52	7.5 years
Age 54	8 years
Age 56	8.5 years
Age 58	9 years
Age 60	9.5 years

How do I apply for disability benefits?

There are two ways that you can apply for disability benefits. You can

1. Apply online at www.socialsecurity.gov; or
2. Call our toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, to make an appointment to file a disability claim at your local Social Security office or to set up an appointment for someone to take your claim over the telephone. The disability claims interview lasts about one hour. If you're deaf or hard of hearing, you may call our toll-free TTY number, 1-800-325-0778, between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on business days. If you schedule an appointment, we'll send you a Disability Starter Kit to help you get ready for your disability claims interview. The Disability Starter Kit also is available online at www.socialsecurity.gov/disability.

You have the right to representation by an attorney or other qualified person of your choice when you do business with Social Security. More information is in Your Right To Representation (Publication No. 05-10075), which is also available from Social Security.

When should I apply and what information do I need?

You should apply for disability benefits as soon as you become disabled. Processing an application for disability benefits can take three to five months. To apply for disability benefits, you'll need to complete an application for Social Security benefits. You can apply online at www.socialsecurity.gov. We may be able to process your application faster if you help us by getting any other information we need.

The information we need includes:

- Your Social Security number;
- Your birth or baptismal certificate;

- Names, addresses and phone numbers of the doctors, caseworkers, hospitals and clinics that took care of you, and dates of your visits;
- Names and dosage of all the medicine you take;
- Medical records from your doctors, therapists, hospitals, clinics, and caseworkers that you already have in your possession;
- Laboratory and test results;
- A summary of where you worked and the kind of work you did; and
- A copy of your most recent W-2 Form (Wage and Tax Statement) or, if you're self-employed, your federal tax returns for the past year.

In addition to the basic application for disability benefits, you'll also need to fill out other forms. One form collects information about your medical condition and how it affects your ability to work. Other forms give doctors, hospitals and other health care professionals who have treated you, permission to send us information about your medical condition.

Don't delay applying for benefits if you can't get all of this information together quickly. We'll help you get it.

Who decides if I am disabled?

We'll review your application to make sure you meet some basic requirements for disability benefits. We'll check whether you worked enough years to qualify. Also, we'll evaluate any current work activities. If you meet these requirements, we'll process your application and forward your case to the Disability Determination Services office in your state.

This state agency completes the initial disability determination decision for us. Doctors and disability specialists in the state agency ask your doctors for information about your condition. They'll consider all the facts in your case. They'll use the medical evidence from your doctors, hospitals, clinics, or institutions where you've been treated and all other information. They'll ask your doctors about

- Your medical condition(s);
- When your medical condition(s) began;
- How your medical condition(s) limit your activities;
- Medical tests results; and
- What treatment you've received.

They'll also ask the doctors for information about your ability to do work-related activities, such as walking, sitting, lifting, carrying, and remembering instructions. Your doctors don't decide if you're disabled.

The state agency staff may need more medical information before they can decide if you're disabled. If your medical sources can't provide needed information, the state agency may ask you to go for a special examination. We prefer to ask your own doctor, but sometimes the exam may have to be done by someone else. Social Security will pay for the exam and for some of the related travel costs.

How we make the decision

We use a five-step process to decide if you're disabled.

1. Are you working?

If you're working and your earnings average more than a certain amount each month, we generally won't consider you to be disabled. The amount changes each year. For the current figure, see the annual Update (Publication No. 05-10003).

If you're not working, or your monthly earnings average to the current amount or less, the state agency then looks at your medical condition.

2. Is your medical condition "severe"?

For you to be considered to have a disability by Social Security's definition, your medical condition must significantly limit your ability to do basic work activities—such as lifting, standing, walking, sitting, and remembering—for at least 12 months. If your medical condition isn't severe we won't consider you to be disabled. If your condition is severe, we proceed to step three.

3. Does your impairment(s) meet or medically equal a listing?

Our list of impairments (the listings) describes medical conditions that we consider severe enough to prevent a person from completing substantial gainful activity, regardless of age, education, or work experience. If your medical condition (or combination of medical conditions) isn't on this list, the state agency looks to see if your condition is as severe as a condition on the list. If the severity of your medical condition meets or equals the severity of a listed impairment, the state agency will decide that you have a qualifying disability. If the severity of your condition doesn't meet or equal the severity level of a listed impairment, the state agency goes on to step four.

4. Can you do the work you did before?

At this step, we decide if your medical impairment(s) prevents you from performing any of your past work. If it doesn't, we'll decide you don't have a qualifying disability. If it does, we'll proceed to step five.

5. Can you do any other type of work?

If you can't do the work you did in the past, we look to see if there's other work you can do despite your impairment(s). We consider your age, education, past work experience, and any skills you may have that could be used to do other work. If you can't do other work, we'll decide that you're disabled. If you can do other work, we'll decide that you don't have a qualifying disability.

Special rules for blind people

There are special rules for people who are blind. For more information, ask for If You Are Blind Or Have Low Vision—How We Can Help (Publication No. 05-10052).

We'll tell you our decision

When the state agency makes a determination on your case, we'll send a letter to you. If your application is approved, the letter will show the amount of your benefit, and when your payments start. If your application isn't approved, the letter will explain why and tell you how to appeal the determination if you don't agree with it.

What if I disagree?

If you disagree with a decision made on your claim, you can appeal it. The steps you can take are explained in The Appeals Process (Publication No. 05-10041), which is available from Social Security.

How we'll contact you

Generally, we mail or call you when we want to contact you about your benefits, but sometimes, a Social Security representative may come to your home. Our representative will show you identification before talking about your benefits. Calling the Social Security office to ask if someone was sent to see you is a good idea.

If you're blind or have low vision, you can choose to receive notices from us in one of the following ways:

- Standard print notice by first-class mail;
- Standard print notice by certified mail;
- Standard print notice by first-class mail and a follow-up telephone call;
- Braille notice and a standard print notice by first-class mail;
- Microsoft Word file on a data compact disc (CD) and a standard print notice by first-class mail;
- Audio CD and a standard print notice by first-class mail; or
- Large print (18-point size) notice and a standard print notice by first-class mail.

For more information, visit our website at www.socialsecurity.gov/notices or call us toll-free at 1-800-772-1213. If you're deaf or hard of hearing, you may call our TTY number at 1-800-325-0778.

What happens when my claim is approved?

We'll send a letter to you telling you your application is approved, the amount of your monthly benefit, and the effective date. Your monthly disability benefit is based on your average lifetime earnings. Your first Social Security disability benefits will be paid for the sixth full month after the date your disability began.

Here is an example: If the state agency decides your disability began on January 15, your first disability benefit will be paid for the month of July. Social Security benefits are paid in the month following the month for which they are due, so you'll receive your July benefit in August.

You'll also receive What You Need To Know When You Get Disability Benefits (Publication No. 05-10153), which gives you important information about your benefits and tells you what changes you must report to us.

Can my family get benefits?

Certain members of your family may qualify for benefits based on your work. They include:

- Your spouse, if he or she is age 62 or older;
- Your spouse at any age, if he or she is caring for a child of yours who is younger than age 16 or disabled;
- Your unmarried child, including an adopted child, or, in some cases, a stepchild or grandchild. The child must be younger than age 18 (or younger than 19 if still in high school);
- Your unmarried child, age 18 or older, if he or she has a disability that started before age 22. The child's disability must also meet the definition of disability for adults.

NOTE: In some situations, a divorced spouse may qualify for benefits based on your earnings, if he or she was married to you for at least 10 years, is not currently married, and is at least age 62. The money paid to a divorced spouse doesn't reduce your benefit or any benefits due to your current spouse or children.

How do other payments affect my benefits?

If you're getting other government benefits, the amount of your Social Security disability benefits may be affected. For more information, you should see the following:

- How Workers' Compensation And Other Disability Payments May Affect Your Benefits (Publication No. 05-10018);
- Windfall Elimination Provision (Publication No. 05-10045); and
- Government Pension Offset (Publication No. 05-10007).

You can get these publications from our website, or you can contact us to request them.

What do I need to tell Social Security?

If you have an outstanding warrant for your arrest

You must tell us if you have an outstanding arrest warrant for any of the following felony offenses:

- Flight to avoid prosecution or confinement;
- Escape from custody; and
- Flight-escape.

You can't receive regular disability benefits, or any underpayments you may be due, for any month in which there is an outstanding arrest warrant for any of these felony offenses.

If you're convicted of a crime

Tell Social Security right away if you're convicted of a crime. Regular disability benefits, or any underpayments, that may be due aren't paid for the months a person is confined for a crime, but any family members who are eligible for benefits based on that person's work may continue to receive benefits.

Monthly benefits, or any underpayments that may be due, are usually not paid to someone who commits a crime and is confined to an institution by court order and at public expense. This applies if the person has been found

- Not guilty by reason of insanity or similar factors (such as mental disease, mental defect, or mental incompetence); or
- Incompetent to stand trial.

If you violate a condition of parole or probation

You must tell us if you're violating a condition of your probation or parole imposed under federal or state law. You can't receive regular disability benefits or any underpayment that may be due for any month in which you violate a condition of your probation or parole.

When do I get Medicare?

You'll get Medicare coverage automatically after you've received disability benefits for two years. You can find more information about the Medicare program, in Medicare (Publication No. 05-10043).

What do I need to know about working?

After you start receiving Social Security disability benefits, you may want to try working again. Social Security has special rules called work incentives that allow you to test your ability to work and still receive monthly Social Security disability benefits. You can also get help with education, rehabilitation, and training you may need to work.

If you do take a job or become self-employed, tell us about it right away. We need to know when you start or stop work and if there are any changes in your job duties, hours of work, or rate of pay. You can call us toll-free at 1-800-772-1213. If you're deaf or hard of hearing, you may call our TTY number, 1-800-325-0778.

For more information about helping you return to work, ask for Working While Disabled—How We Can Help (Publication No. 05-10095). A guide to all our employment supports can be found in our Red Book, A Summary Guide to Employment Support for Individuals with Disabilities Under the Social Security Disability Insurance and Supplemental Security Income Programs (Publication No. 64-030). Also visit our website, www.socialsecurity.gov/work.

The Ticket to Work program

Under this program, Social Security and Supplemental Security Income disability beneficiaries can get help with training and other services they need to go to work at no cost to them. Most disability beneficiaries are eligible to participate in the Ticket to Work program and can select an approved provider of their choice who can offer the kind of services they need. To learn more about this program, ask for Your Ticket To Work (Publication No. 05-10061).
